ANNOUNCING THE

UIS CENTER FOR LINCOLN STUDIES

S E R I E S

Publication of books about Lincoln and those who surrounded him remains important, as scholars continue to refine their understanding of Lincoln and his associates, and the educated public, too, continues its fascination with the sixteenth president. This series will in many ways take up the torch of The Knox College Lincoln Studies Center Series, which saw great success in publishing documentary editions. This series is interested in documentary editions, collections, and monographs. We welcome projects that are grounded in history, but also those that cross disciplinary boundaries throughout the humanities and social sciences. Interested authors should contact series editor Dr. Michael Burlingame (mburl2@uis.edu) or acquiring editor Alison Syring (asyring2@uillinois.edu).
